

Covenant Baptist Church

Reformed and Refreshing

June 13th, 2021

Welcome to Covenant Baptist Church. We are a Reformed church committed to three things:

- The Exaltation of God

We desire that the people at Covenant truly understand who God is and His rightful place in their lives as their Lord and sovereign Savior.

- The Edification of the Saints

We consider it extremely important to correctly teach the Bible, verse by verse, so we can properly have the Holy Spirit apply it to our lives.

- The Evangelization of the Sinner

We understand that God has given us the responsibility to be stewards of the Gospel and that means sharing it exactly like God gave it to us with those who need Jesus.

Announcements

Happy Father's Day! "If fathers are to raise a generation of godly men who will lead the women to godliness, they must teach the truths that are mandated in this father's manual... 'the Bible'. The primary duty of a father is to teach holy living to his sons, and, of course, to his children as well - including the daughter..." John MacArthur.

Book of the Week: The Works of John Owen, Vol. 1: The Glory of Christ, by John Owen

Despite his other achievements, Owen is best famed for his writings. These cover the range of doctrinal, ecclesiastical and practical subjects. They are characterized by profundity, thoroughness and, consequently, authority. Andrew Thomson said that Owen 'makes you feel when he has reached the end of his subject, that he has also exhausted it.'

Although many of his works were called forth by the particular needs of his own day they all have a uniform quality of timelessness. Owen's works were republished in full in the nineteenth century. Owen is surely the Prince of the Puritans. 'To master his works', says Spurgeon, 'is to be a profound theologian.'

You Are Not Better Than Racists

—by Samuel Sey

One of the most offensive things the Bible says about racism is that it's another form of partiality.

According to God, you and I are guilty of the same sin racists are guilty of. You are not better than racists. And I am not better than racists either. In fact, racists who hate people like me are no different than people like me who hate racists.

When racists hate black people like me, they are refusing to obey what God commands of them. And when I hate racists, I am refusing to obey what God commands of me. Racists refuse to love people like me as themselves—and if I hate racists, I am refusing to love them as myself.

Though critical race theorists suggest otherwise, racism isn't an "omnipresent phenomenon". It isn't a unique sin—It isn't an unpardonable sin. Racism is simply a particular version of a universal sin: partiality.

Racism is partiality against people because of their skin colour. Therefore, despite the havoc it's wreaked on society, it isn't necessarily more sinful than any other forms of partiality.

Partiality is judging a group of people differently than how we judge others. It is bias or prejudice that favours a kind of people at the expense of others. It's a sin with many faces and many forms.

However, the Bible doesn't suggest one form of partiality is worse than another. For instance, when the Bible says, "You shall not be partial to the poor or defer to the great, but in righteousness shall you judge your neighbor" (Leviticus 19:15), God is suggesting partiality against poor people is just as sinful as partiality against wealthy people.

Therefore, racism against black people isn't worse than racism against white people. Racism isn't worse than classism against poor people or wealthy people. Racism isn't worse than sexism against women or men. Racism isn't worse than partiality against tall people or short people. Racism isn't worse than any form of partiality.

In other words, we are not better than racists. We all fall short of the glory of our impartial and loving God. God shows no partiality, but we cannot say the same. Many of us may not be guilty of racism—but we are all guilty of partiality.

We may not all be guilty of racism—but there is no one righteous on partiality—no, not one. That doesn't downplay the destructive and divisive nature of racism. Actually, by addressing the root of racism—partiality—we would be better at digging out the universal temptations that cause some sinners to hate others because of their skin colour. Meaning, if we really want racists to repent, we should all repent from our own forms of partiality too—that way, we wouldn't be blinded by logs in our own eyes.

But that presupposes that most of the people who claim to hate racism actually hate racism. It's impossible to hate racism if we do not hate all forms of partiality. If we do not hate all forms of partiality—we do not hate racism, we just hate racists.

When you and I stand before God, we will be guilty of the same sin racists are guilty of: partiality. Therefore, there are many unrepentant racists in hell and there are many repentant racists in heaven.

This is because partiality is one of the sins God condemns—and it's one of the sins he forgives.

Starnes: Southern Baptists Take Dangerous Turn Left

—by Todd Starnes

On Tuesday, messengers to the Southern Baptist Convention named Ed Litton as their president, embracing a moderate pastor who says critical race theory is nothing to worry about.

Litton defeated Georgia pastor Mike Stone, who was favored by conservatives but fiercely opposed by woke Baptists, basement-dwelling Twitter Baptists and left-wing religion news propagandists.

The New York Times headline summed up the day's events — “Southern Baptists Narrowly Head Off Conservative Takeover.”

As one dejected Christian told me, “Biden Baptists won the day.”

Messengers rejected a proposal that would have explicitly denounced critical race theory.

Instead, they approved a watered-down measure that doesn't mention it by name but rejects any view that sees racism as rooted in “anything other than sin.”

One white messenger was rebuked after he urged the SBC to denounce critical race theory by name, saying it held him “guilty because of the melanin content of my skin.”

“If some people in this room were as passionate about the gospel as they are about critical race theory, we would win this world to Christ,” retorted James Merritt, chairman of the resolutions committee.

For a decade now, a number of young pastors have been indoctrinated in some Baptist seminaries with their minds filled with ideas like social justice.

Conservatives made a crucial mistake during those years; they did not mind the store, they just ignored the problem. Had they taken the time to attend annual meetings and engage in the process, conservatives might have been able to snuff out the wokeness before it infected the SBC.

In response to the leftward drift, thousands of Christians joined the Conservative Baptist Network. They mustered a noble fight, but at the end of the day it was too little, too late.

The other side rallied mean-spirited Baptist Twitter bullies and heathen journalists at the Washington Post to wage a disgusting political smear job on Pastor Stone and other conservatives.

They were brutally slandered by their woke brethren while being accused of being misogynists, racists, and xenophobes. Baptist Deplorables. It's an ugly business when Christians behave more like political operatives than ambassadors for Christ.

When Baptists have problems with one another they should go to the Gospel of Matthew, not the Washington Post.

While there's no doubt that the nation's largest non-Catholic denomination is on a slippery slope to liberalism, all is not lost.

The Conservative Baptist Network demonstrated in a very short amount of time that thousands and thousands of Baptists are not keen on the current direction of the convention. I suspect their numbers will only increase over time as the denomination becomes even more woke.

It's going to take a lot of work to repair the damage that's been done - but we must stay the course.

Because as the Southern Baptists go, so goes the nation.
